Accounting, Auditing & Accountability Journal v34 n9 (2021)217: 284-314

Peer reviewed
Summary:
This study adopts an institutional entrepreneurship perspective in the context of public-private partnerships (P3s) to highlight the role of social actors in enacting institutional change in a complex organizational setting. By studying the actions of two prominent social actors, the authors argue that successful institutional change is the result of dynamic managerial activity supported by political clout, organizational authority an...
